

Join our Health Consumer Network

Are you a patient or support person who is interested in helping shape the way we conduct health research studies and clinical trials? If so, we want to hear from you.

Who are we looking for?

We are seeking expressions of interest from:

- patients with lived experience of a health condition and;
- their family, friends and carers.

How do I get involved?

Please scan the below QR code, or go to: mater.li/health-consumer-form and complete the Health Consumer Network expression of interest form.

Why participate?

We want to hear from people who are interested in:

1. improving the way that health research and clinical trials are undertaken
2. ensuring that consumer voices are heard and can effectively influence health research and clinical trials
3. giving back to the healthcare system and contributing to research
4. creating networks and sharing experiences with researchers and with people who also share an interest in research
5. developing new skills, while being remunerated for your time.
